Reviews

An extremely great ebook with lucid and perfect explanations. It is full of knowledge and wisdom. It has been printed in an exceedingly straightforward way in fact it is merely right after I finished reading through this publication by which really transformed me, altered the way I believe.

Not illustrated. 1888 Excerpt: .In the Nom. plural all genders, the uninflected form occurs beside the inflected form when the adjective is used predicatively; thus die man sint blint or blinte (the men are blind); wir birun fro (we are joyful). Note.--The Nom. sing. uninflected form of the adjective is a remnant of the time when the adjectives had the same endings as the nouns, cp. Nom. sing. wolf wolf), wort word); era honour), is properly the Acc. form, the regular Nom. form would be er, see 35, 2. Pronouns. 187. Personal pronouns were sometimes omitted, as sprichist, tha ni scalt (thou speakest what thou oughtest not); farames (let us go); uuard tho (then it happened); mih hungirit (/ am hungry). The relative pronoun was generally expressed by der, daz, diu, which however could be omitted, as funtun einan man, mit namon Simeon hie (they found a man who was called Simeon by name). der and er were sometimes used pleonastically, as thie morganllhho tag ther bisuorget sih selbo (the morroiv shall take thought for the things of itself); Lazarus er was iro ein (Lazarus was one of them). Verbs. 188. Tenses. The future simple was generally expressed by the present as in OE., as nemnis thu sinan namon Jdhannem (thou shalt call his name John). The preterite had rarely a perfect meaning. Both the perfect and pluperfect were expressed by the past participle and one of the auxiliary verbs haben, eigan, wasan, as er habet uns gizeigot (he hath...
