Hill, Vice President, Section I, Before the Section of Economic Science and Statistics, American Association for the Advancement of Science, at the Toronto Meeting, August, 1889 Our economic and sociologic relations are problematic, and an analysis of the prospective conditions thereof can but be of benefit and interest in anticipation of union or not, but the union of these two peoples in one government eventually is ascertain as the union of territory is now definite and unalterable. Two committees of the United States Congress are already in the field studying this problem from a political point of view, and that a lively and important discussion will take place at the coming session of Congress in Washington next winter is very certain. Grave and serious may be the immediate results of the coming consideration as an international question, in view of the remarkable existing and rapidly developing conditions that are assuming such complicated features, but the...
