Ahab returns with Obadiah in eager haste, yet with his hard heart burning with wrath and resentment against the Prophet. And it came to pass, when Ahah saw Elijah, that Ahab said unto him, Art thou he that troubleth Israel? Picture this little scene, the king of Israel, and the humbly clad prophet of Jehovah. Anger and hate on the king s countenance, mingled with fear and dread of the humble prophet before him. Noble is the bearing of Elijah, stem and commanding is the expression of his features, and as his piercing eye looks into the face of the king, it flashes with the fire of righteous indignation. The proud monarch shrinks from that gaze, as the last word of his own haughty inquiry dies upon his...
